

ANNIE ROGERS

CONSULTANT, RESEARCHER AND PROJECT COORDINATOR

"Arlington takes organizations through a process that allows them to identify what leadership qualities and talents they really need in a key time of a company's growth. Each opportunity and candidate has a unique profile which is what makes this process so special. Helping Arlington to develop a complete profile is both exciting and creative. Respecting the integrity of the client team and all candidates allows Arlington to develop and refine its unique, warm and personal touch."

Annie is a Consultant, Researcher and Project Coordinator at Arlington Partners International. Annie enjoys being part of a hardworking and focused team. In her previous Corporate Compliance roles at Home Trust Company, Annie used due diligence to research and develop the full picture of a client's profile. Outside of her professional experiences, Annie has demonstrated a capacity to create and bring to market a leading University Art Magazine at Queen's University and enjoys partaking in creative outlets of her own.

In her role at Arlington, Annie supports the Corporate Office of the Chief Executive Officer, as well as the Corporate Leadership team, Managing Directors, and Senior Client Partners. Her responsibilities include providing background and direct support to the senior team at Arlington.

Annie has earned her Honours Bachelor of Arts in Art History from Queen's University.
