

KATE MCALEESE

PROJECT COORDINATOR, RESEARCHER AND SENIOR MANAGER, CLIENT EXPERIENCE

“Inspirational leaders that are dedicated to mentoring and growing others are the key to organizational success. I was drawn to Arlington’s focus on understanding an organization’s values to ensure they will be matched with leaders that will transform, inspire and make a difference. I am thrilled to contribute to the Arlington approach, and to assist organizations in reaching their potential while championing diversity of thought.”

Kate McAleese is a Project Coordinator, Researcher and Senior Manager, Client Experience at Arlington Partners International providing integrated support to Arlington’s leadership team as well as coordinating projects to deliver the highest calibre research foundation and client service. Kate is responsible for supporting a wide range of practice areas including Financial Services, Media and Entertainment, Legal, board, Healthcare, Non-Profit and Academia and supports searches across all industry sectors, globally.

Kate is enthusiastic about connecting leaders and organizations to tailored strategies that allow them to reach their potential and generate change. Kate also supports the research and editing initiatives of Arlington’s magazine. ARLINGTON is an annual magazine distributed globally to our network providing thought leadership and insights into key business and governance issues. It highlights leaders who are making an inspirational mark and difference in their industry sectors, organizations and communities on both sides of the border and beyond.

Kate is currently working towards her Bachelor of Commerce in Human Resources and Humber College.
